Course Information

Film Courses

Courses	Professor/Course Description
Introduction to Korean Film 09:00-12:30	Prof. Jae Soh This class will introduce the creative and commercial rebirth of 101 years of Korean cinema from the 1960's until Director Bong Joon Ho's Parasite winning the 2020 Oscar for Best Picture by which time the most transformative changes in Korean society had already taken shape. Through screening various Korean films of this era and discussing their representations of Korean culture, students will explore the tumultuous transformations of Korean society from the Korean War and military dictatorship to rapid capitalization and democratization. The course consists of lectures, film screenings, and discussions.
Korean Popular Culture 13:30-17:00	Prof. Chang Rae Kim This class is designed to encourage the student to develop the skills of analysis, critical reading, and self-expression. Discussion topics include the discrimination issue on Korean Entertainment, the June Democracy movement in the 1980s, The Female Representation on Korean Film, etc. This course aims to introduce students to cultivate an appreciation of Korean film, TV drama and music as a complex form of popular culture. The class involves film/video screening, class discussions, reports, in class analysis exercises and written assignments. The class will also look more deeply at Korean society and the nature of popular culture itself, and the intertextual relationship of individual text & cultural industries with the audience.
Comparative Studies on World Cinema 17:30-21:00	Prof. Pip Chodorov A combination of history, theory and aesthetics, this course will focus on particular periods and styles of filmmaking. The first lectures will cover the early invention of film as a technology, as an art and as an industry. The succeeding lectures will continue to position film between art and industry while focusing on specific topics in film analysis: space, time, framing, the double, the gaze, and structural and psychoanalytic analysis. The main skill students will learn: how to read a film beyond the story. The examples will be from America, Europe and Asia; fiction, documentary and experimental film; short form and feature films. Students will come out of the class with a deeper appreciation for film as an academic study, an understanding of film analysis, and a grounding in the history of film as it developed across the world, as a tree with many branches.
