

EDU400 Plan for Social Education

1st and 2nd quarters, Senior

Instructor	HATANO KEIKO
Style of Class	Lecture
Number of Credits	2
Day and Period	To be advised

Course Description

Similarly to school education and home education, social education is a discipline that is of great importance in our current era, which is distinguished by constant change in social systems such as politics and economics, in the knowledge and skills required by society, as well as in cultures and customs. In this course, students will learn about education provided through community centers and other facilities, and about the present state of regional development. They will also gain an understanding of the challenges faced by professional human resources deployed in workplaces involved in the implementation of social education such as community centers and other facilities in Fukui City, based on cooperation with course completion certification programs. By learning about the practical aspects of community-building activities rooted in regional areas, students will reflect on policies that aim to support study and activities among citizens and the formation of a society that supports gender equality.

Course Objectives

Prerequisites

Class Materials

Course Method

Evaluation/Assessment

Grading

Course Schedule

Preparation and Follow-up
